Court—Others Accompany it.

When Justice Crutchfield entered the Police Court yesterday morning he scanned the prisoners' pen in the same critical way in which he viewed the Council chamber on Thursday evening when he was renominated for the position he now holds. With this cursory inspection of the subjects who were to come before him the expounder of equity assumed a Dewitt Talmage smile, and the Sergeant, who always sits upon his right, in a sonorous voice cried. "Court's open!"

After pulling up the sieves of his seersucker coat and arming himself with a big palm-leaf fan the Justice started the machinery, and the day's fun began.

The continued case of Richard Evans (colored), charged with forging a check upon the Savings Bank of the Grand United Order of True Reformers, of Richmond, was heard and certified to the Hustings Court. The check was for $43.35, and purported to have been signed by B. F. Turner, the colored real-estate agent.

Mary Johnson is a colored girl of about fourteen summers and her reputation among the policemen is rather undesirable. When she was arrested by Officer Burnett for being disorderly and profine and creating a disturbance on the street she used all sorts of horrid language. The Justice declared that she would contaminate the other prisoners if sent to jail, and ordered her mother to give her a good whipping in court. Mother and daughter, accompanied by Bailiff Dan Turner, repaired to the ante-room of the court and soon sounds of distress fell mean the morning air and it was known that Mary was receiving the punishment she so well merited.
